Grand Rally of the Northwest,

AT CHICAGO,

Tuesday, October 2nd.

HON. WILLIAM H. SEWARD,

Gen. James W. Nye,
Hon. Chas. Francis Adams,
Hon. George W. Patterson.

GREAT WIDE AWAKE DEMONSTRATION.

Turn Out! Turn Out!!

On Tuesday next the largest political demonstration ever held in the Northwest, will take place in this city. The Committee of Arrangements are advised of an immense attendance from abroad, and the Wide Awake display in the evening will be magnificent. Delegations from Michigan, Indiana, Wisconsin and Iowa will swell the throng. A banner costing one hundred dollars will be presented by the Republican ladies of Chicago to the largest Wide Awake Company in attendance in proportion to the number of Republican voters in the town. The hospitalities of Chicago are extended to everybody for the great occasion. Come one! Come all!!

PENNSYLVANIA.

A most provoking typographical blunder occurred in our remarks on the October election in Pennsylvania, in our Saturday's issue. The context perhaps saved it from misinterpretation in the minds of many. The paragraph commencing, "We cannot confidently assume the election of Col. Curtin," was written "We count confidently upon the election of Col. Curtin"—which makes a slight difference. The great Republican mass meeting at Pittsburgh on Thursday last was the mightiest demonstration ever held in the State. The detailed accounts show that not less than 50,000 persons participated in it, of whom 3,800 were Wide-Awakes in uniform. In the campaign of 1856, the largest Fremont demonstration in the State numbered only 7,000. On this occasion there were more than that number assembled on the grounds from the workshops of Pittsburgh alone.

This is but one item. Another is this: The Wide-Awake organization of Philadelphia alone exceeds the vote cast for Fremont in that city by more than 2,000 persons. Let the friends of freedom rely upon Pennsylvania. The coalition against Mr. Curtin is formidable indeed, but there is a still mightier host toiling night and day for his success.

"WAIT FOR THE WAGON."

The Forty Horse Wagon!

In the campaign of 1856 Mr. Douglas accompanied Spalding and Rogers' circus down the line of the St. Louis, Alton and Chicago R. R., speaking in the tent in several places. The two attractions were announced together in the newspapers in the following style:

"WAIT FOR THE WAGON."

The 40 Horse Wagon.

It will make the grand entree into Carlinville, about 10 A. M., Wednesday, September 8th, 1858.

SPALDING & ROGERS' NEW ORLEANS

CIRCUS!!

From the New Orleans Amphitheatre last winter, and Worth Treble it. Leaving the spring.

COMPRISING THEIR THREE CIRCUSES.

A Princely Retinue of 100 Persons, 113 HORSES,

(Any other Circus would call it 100 Persons and Horses.)

THE LARGEST TRAVELING SHOW IN THE WORLD,

Remember the Date:

Carlinville, Wednesday, September 8th at 11 o'clock A. M. and 7 P. M.

—ALSO—

GRAND

DEMOCRATIC MASS MEETING.

THE HON. STEPHEN A. DOUGLAS!

WILL SPEAK IN

CARLINVILLE, WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 8TH.

The above is clipped from the Carlinville Enquirer (Sept. 4, 1858) Democratic organ in Macoupin county. The Logan county Herald contained a similar announcement. Its that locality, and other Democratic journals paraded the double attraction for their respective towns.

We learn that a new and improved scheme of excitement has been hit upon by Douglas this year for a campaigning tour of Illinois. He proposes to charter a special train, hire a band of music, lease a small cannon, engage the services of a gunner and a corps of blowers and strikers at the right places—and then start forth. His announcements will read as follows:

Judge Douglas will address the citizens of Illinois at

Bridgeport	October 8 A. M.
Brighton	" 10.00 "
Jerseyville	" 12.00 "
Alton	" 12.15 P. M.
Upper Alton	" 1.00 "
Edwardsville	" 3.30 "
Troy	" 5.00 "
Collinsville	" 6.00 "
Belleville	" 8.00 "

By payment of the fare, and all intermediate places included.

Go it Douglas! Go it cannon! Go it trombones! Go it claqueurs! Go it grocery!

To Wide-Awake Competitors for the Prize Banner.

The Republican ladies of Chicago will present a banner worth $100 to the largest company of Wide-Awakes in attendance at the Seward meeting, on Tuesday, Oct. 2d, in proportion to the Republican vote of the town, ship or city to which they belong. The calculation will be based on the last general election, viz: in Illinois, Indiana and Michigan on the State elections held in 1858; and in Wisconsin and Iowa on the State elections of 1859.

The officers of all companies intending to compete for the flag, or wishing to compare relative strength, are requested to be present at the Committee Room, Tremont House, on Monday evening, Oct. 1st, when the returns of the vote cast in their town, ship or city at the above specified election.

A Good Move.

At the special instance and expense of the Hon. Wm. H. Seward, a paper was carried around on Saturday for signatures by Douglas men, calling on the Mayor to install Mr. Wikoff, manager of Forbi's (late) Horse Opera house, as the subject of "Liberty and Economy." We hope the Mayor will accept the invitation to put salt on his tail himself, and receive the plate over to the Democracy at the Opera house. It will be a new subject to most of his sufferers. The Democracy have a florid acquaintance with "economy" in Cook County, but are utter strangers to it wherever they are in power. See Crosby's report. As to "Liberty," it is high time that our Democratic friends take the following of a Judge Douglas" or the goddess, as they are all foreigners to her. Pass round the salt.

VOLUME XIV. CHICAGO, MONDAY OCTOBER 1, 1860. NUMBER 79.

Henry Winter Davis on the Stump.

Henry Winter Davis addressed a very large concourse of people in Baltimore on Thursday last. He declared himself unreservedly for Bell and Everett, but denounced the New York Douglas and Bell fusion without stint. He said he had once deemed the election of Bell possible in the House of Representatives by the aid of Republican votes if the alternative were presented—Bell, or Breckinridge, or Jo. Lane. But the insane movements of the pretended friends of Mr. Bell, in New York and elsewhere, had rendered it impossible. For himself, he desired a close alliance between all the opponents of the Democracy. He regarded any coalition between the friends of Mr. Bell and either faction of the Democracy as sheer suicide—as an effectual extinction of the party—as a defeat which involved also the loss of self-respect. He scorned the idea of disunion in the event of the election of Mr. Lincoln or any other candidate. He declared Mr. Lincoln a conservative man, in whose hands the rights of all sections of the country would be safe. If the Democracy of the North were so afraid that Mr. Lincoln's election would imperil the Union, why didn't they turn in and vote for Bell, who might thus be elected, instead of firing at random and laboring to bring about the result which they pretended to deplore.

A Chicago Man Managed.

There is now going on in New Grenada a war of the so called Liberals against the Conservatives. In the progress of the fight, the Liberals attacked the town of Santa Marta, where Cezarino B. Segarino, late of this city, and now Consular agent, has his head-quarters. A correspondent of the New York Herald says that while the Conservatives were making their way into the town by forcing a passage through the houses on either side of the street, after the fashion of Gen. Taylor at Monterey, the inhabitants, mostly Liberals, being meanwhile doing their best in defence, Sheldon, as any American would, got excited by the noise of the fray, seized a musket and pitched in. When last heard from he had been wounded, not by the enemy, but by the old musket which evidently was most deadly at the butt. Nobody doubts Charley's pluck; but we trust that he has not compromised himself and his office by his somewhat chivalrous act. Being shot on terms after Conservatives have taken the town, just because he had endeavored to teach a spiritless people how to defend themselves, would be rather an inglorious termination of a newly begun consular career.

Gov. Randall's Appointments in Indiana.

Gov. A. W. Randall of Wisconsin will address the citizens of Indiana at the times and places following:

Logansport, Tuesday, October 2.
Fort Wayne, Wednesday,	"	3.
Plymouth, Thursday,	"	4
South Bend, Friday,	"	5.
Valparaiso, Saturday,	"	6.
La Porte, Monday,	"	8.

Niles Wide Awakes.

We learn that the Niles (Mich.) Wide Awakes are coming to the Seward demonstration en masse. They expect to give any company on the ground the tallest kind of a chase for the banner.

Janesville Coming.—It is reported that the Janesville Wide Awakes are coming here tomorrow, (Oct. 2d,) in immense force. They are thinking that the prize banner ought to go to Wisconsin.

American Wine Company.—We announce with great pleasure, that the "American Wine Company" of Chicago, having successfully proven the superiority of the Missouri grape, have received to transfer the company to St. Louis, where they are now finishing all extensive manufactory, corner of Gayer and Second Carondelet avenue. The operations of the company are under the superintendence of an experienced practical vinter, Dr. Schaffer, aided with the aid of our well known friend and professional brother, Ike Cook, of Chicago, if they do not bring the institution to a splendid and profitable fruition then we are exceedingly mistaken. We have enjoyed the luxury of a taste (a taste only, mind you!) of the Clarets and Isabella, of their brewing, and want nothing to do with the imported article, when they—and especially the Isabella—are about. The company expect to produce between 60,000 and 70,000 gallons the first season.—St. Louis Bulletin.

THE CITY.

Trinity Church.—The new church edifice of Trinity is making rapid progress. The roof will be put on during the coming week.

Hahnemann Medical College.—The name of F. L. Vincent should have been given in our last issue, as Demonstrator of Anatomy in the Hahnemann Medical College.

Miss Tillinghast's Concert.—The attendance at Miss Tillinghast's Concert on Friday evening was very flattering as regards numbers and appreciation. Her performances were entirely satisfactory to the auditors.

Musical Union Rehearsal.—On this, Monday, evening Mr. George F. Root will meet the Musical Union in their Hall, at half past seven o'clock. Every member is expected to be present, as business of importance regarding the future action of the Society will be decided.

Excursion of Hon. Wm. H. Seward.—The Lincoln Rangers are to turn out this afternoon at 5 o'clock to do escort duty to Hon. Wm. H. Seward, who is to visit the city by the Illinois Central Railroad from Princeton. The cars will reach Park Row about 6 P. M., where Mr. Seward will leave the train and be escorted up Michigan avenue to the Tremont House.

A Beautiful Picture.—Charles Shober, of 109 Lake street, has just issued a beautiful lithograph picture, founded upon the conceit of Diogenes in the search of an honest man. The picture contains an excellent medallion likeness of Abraham Lincoln, over which Diogenes with his lantern is reading, with the White House in the distance. The design is a very happy one, and its execution in the best style of lithograph art.

Personal.—Lady Franklin and her niece, Miss Cracraft, arrived in this city on Saturday evening, and took rooms at the Tremont House. The widdy devotion of the noble woman, her faith and courage, after hope in the safety of her noble husband had died out of nearly all hearts, the zeal with which she labored and won others to labor in the attempt of relieving him, have given her a warm and cherished place all round the globe in the minds of those who esteem and rightly appreciate high loyalty as hers. She is to remain in the city a few days.

An Extra Train from Freeport Next Tuesday.—The Freeport Journal says: "An extra train will run to Chicago from this city next Tuesday, the day of Seward's demonstration—leaving here at 5:15 A. M., and reaching Chicago at 11:15 A. M. Fare $3 to Chicago and return, and tickets good on regular trains from Monday until Wednesday."

The boys up there are going to make a big fight for the prize banner, and if the other companies are not wide awake, it is going west of Rock River, to a place known on the map as Freeport.

The Mendenha Murder Convicted.—The man Edward Murphy, some months since arrested in the City Bridewell by officer Cunningham, charged with murdering Samuel Robinson, on the steamer Globe at Mackinac, in 1851, was taken to Mackinac and confined in the jail at that place, but on the 18th of August, broke jail—manufacturing a key from some wire. The inhabitants turned out, and after pursuing him a long distance managed to retake him.

On the 17th of the present month, his trial resulted in a verdict of murder in the first degree, and he has been sentenced to solitary confinement for life in the State Penitentiary at Jackson, Mich.

Sam Dunn & Co.—When the lover of sphituous liquors, gazing at a beautiful column, glances at the top and says "capital!" he not only states a plain matter of fact, but passes a merited commendation. The notions of columns in the Corinthiated animal mass, and meeting each one, especially if he has just come from Sam Dunn & Co.'s, No. 101 Randolph street, the lover of intoxicatively says "capital," which is true if the column be surmounted by a hat selected from their extensive fall stock. They are experienced in everything in their line, and never only from the best country, and offer their patrons an assortment equal to any ever opened in this city.

Political Meeting in the Tenth Ward.

At a regularly called meeting in the Tenth Ward, a committee was appointed to consider the propriety of forming a Club, and at an adjourned meeting, held at the house of Henry Niemeyer, September 28th, the committee reported that it was both proper and necessary, and recommended that a "Tenth Ward Republican Campaign Club" be formed, and that the following persons be elected officers of the same:

President—H. N. Frishie.

Vice Presidents—D. F. Wilson, John Schulgen, C. Hopkinson, G. W. Edwards, John Lobstein, E. Harlbeck.

Secretary—Max Schuler.

Assistant Secretary—Z. Favor.

Corie, John Grath, Jacob Hood, H. B. Roger, Fred. Rose, Christian Myrding, A. S. Mason, Geo. Hort, John Bodwell.

It was moved and adopted, that Division C of the West Side Wide Awakes be immediately formed, and that all other Wide Awakes in the Ward were to be invited to join with it in one Company, under the above name, at H. Niemeyer's, Saturday, when the organization was to be completed. A Glee Club was suggested, but not formed, when the meeting adjourned.

A Democratic Man Corrects Statistics.—On Saturday evening the Coroner held an inquest upon the body of a man found drowned in the Basin at the foot of Madison street. He was first seen sitting on the end of the pier which runs into the Basin between the foot of Madison and Monroe streets, by a boy named James Haggarty. As he passed along, he observed the man take off his coat and throw himself into the Basin. He accordingly went for aid, and meeting one Mr. Wahl, driving in a buggy, the two went down to the pier and found that the man was drowned.

The Coroner was sent for and the body removed. Upon examination, his throat was found to be cut, but not sufficiently to have caused death, and from the medical testimony, the jury returned a verdict that the deceased came to his death by drowning.

The body is that of a man about thirty years of age; five feet three inches in height; full face; wore a knit cotton undershirt; hickory shirt; gray cassimere pants; blue pilot cloth coat, and under it a blue summer sack coat; blue socks and congress gaiters. Upon the body were found a pair of kids thread gloves, fifteen cents in change, and some papers. The body can be identified either at the Coroner's office or No. 184 Washington street.

Evening Reports at Palmer's Academy.—Many times a little additional attraction besides affording its additional pleasures, increases the salary, improves our circumstances, or enlarges the sphere of our usefulness.

Those who can secure an hour or leisure two evenings each week, will do well to employ them in writing, reading, arithmetic, or bookkeeping, at Palmer's Academy, No. 819 State street.

Mr. Palmer, in the last few weeks, has established one of the most flourishing private schools in this city, thus proving that he possesses a good degree of energy rightly applied by a thorough business education which is necessary to the success of every educator, and which we may truly add so prominently qualifies him for a teacher of evening schools. His advertisement will be found in our columns.

The Homœopathic Festival.

We would earnestly call the attention of our readers to the "Re-union" to be opened the coming week in aid of a Free Hospital for the sick and suffering poor of our city.

This important charity claims largely the sympathy and co-operation of our benevolent and intelligent public. Every one who has had practical experience among the destitute classes knows how severely sickness draws upon their scanty resources, how misery and suffering are prolonged, as well by their own ignorance and want of skill as by the need of timely medical aid and suitable comforts, and how often absolute poverty and dependence result from this condition of things. Every year are our sympathies and purses taxed to meet just such cases, and with only the satisfaction of affording very partial and insufficient relief. Here, then, is an opportunity of aiding an institution which shall afford an asylum to those who must otherwise be dependent upon individual charities; which, at best, can be but very inadequately applied, and left to suffer, and, perhaps, die at neglect.

And the object appeals alike to all. In no one religious sect—in no particular political party—and to no one branch of medical science. Every Christian heart beats responsive to the spirit of Him who said, "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, ye have done it unto me." Every political party seeks the common good of its own community, and every system of medicine teaches that the whole pill theory gives place to good nursing.

Thus far the various committees report to us the most encouraging responses from all to whom they have applied for aid. A corresponding festival in Boston, a short time since, netted a profit of over $13,000. One can anticipate no such result in Chicago, but the return of prosperous times gives them every encouragement to hope a very handsome reward for their efforts.

They are making arrangements to provide dinners and suppers during the week, commencing on Tuesday. They wish to assure the public that all their charges will be moderate, and that they will establish strict regulations to prevent any unfair advantage being taken of those who are generous enough to give them their patronage. A season ticket for one person, for the entire week, (not including refreshments,) will be $1; for two persons, $1.50; single tickets, 25 cents.

Several magazine articles have been contributed by friends of the object, both in this city and at the East; among which are a beautiful silver service, two elegant pianos, sewing machines, &c.

We hope our political friends will lend a passing thought and a helping hand to the good work, and bring their friends from the country to unite in these re-unions, which we think may be made one of the most attractive features of the week.

Good Authority on Stoves.—With the thermometer at 25 degrees below zero, the Albany, N. Y., Atlas and Argus says of the the Railroad Coal Burner:

"The following complimentary notice, from the Evening Journal, we can fully endorse, having used in our Press Room one of the large size Railway Coal Burners (a twin brother of the Parlor Furnace) for the past two years:

"Litchfield's Parlor Furnace.—One stands in our office as we write this paragraph—an upright, rather ornamented cylinder, surmounted by a cast-iron network and vase.—There is a tradition in the family that a fire was kindled in it last fall. We speak of our knowledge when we say that no such transaction has occurred since. Kindling is an annual ceremony only.

"You light a fire in it at the beginning of winter, and it never goes out till spring. All you have to do is to daily replenish the coal at the top, and take out the ashes at the bottom, and it goes on burning forever, like the lamps in the Temple of Vesta.

"It conducts itself with the modesty of true merit. No roaring, or crackling, or snapping, or other fussy manœuvres. It is as quiet as a mouse, and but for the vase on the top, and the steady red glow through its little gothic windows, no one would know whether there was fire in it or not. The thermometer stands at 72° in the farthest corner of the room, and yet no part of the stove's surface is so hot that you may not safely touch it with your finger; for the heat comes out through interstices from an air chamber, and not off from the heated iron. The air is mild and pleasant, with none of the dust and dirt of gas and coal-iron, which has made the name of stove accursed in the nostrils of many a household.

Nor is anything more easy than to regulate it. The draught slide controls its action as promptly as the throttle valve does that of a locomotive. You can measure out the exact and uniform temperature you wish, as precisely as you would measure out a peck of wheat. No matter whether storms are raging, thaws dripping, or sharp frosts biting without, your thermometer will mark a genial and steady 70° within. At night it will burn as slowly, and by day as briskly, as you desire. It is not one of those obstinate cast iron nuisances which will have it hot or cold as they please, and not as you please, but is as obedient as a willing horse to the rein. Choose the degree of heat you want, and open or shut the slide accordingly, and the degree of heat you will continue to have, till you call for a different one.

"We cannot conscientiously recommend it to coal-dealers, for it uses but a slender amount of their commodity, nor to charcoal men and dealers in kindling-wood, who, if its use were universal, would have to retire from business, except for a day or two in November. Neither is it beneficial to the manufacturers of furnaces, for it will warm a suite of connected rooms as well as one, and will send up heat through registers in the second and third stories as well as they could. In short we do not exaggerate in saying that with half the coal it makes double the heat of any other contrivance for house-warming that we have tried.

The secret of its success is that it produces perfect combustion of the coal. When this does not take place, part of the coal is wasted in forming carbonic oxide gas, while more is wasted from not being thoroughly reduced to ashes. To do away with these difficulties, or in other words, to burn coal economically, so as to get the most heat with the least expense and trouble, is a problem over which scientific men have labored for two hundred years. But the improvements of Mr. Litchfield seemed to have solved it at last."

These stoves may be seen in operation, and are for sale at H. C. Van Schaick, Jr., 47 State street.

An Unknown Man Commits Suicide.—On Saturday evening the Coroner held an inquest upon the body of a man found drowned in the Basin at the foot of Madison street. He was first seen sitting on the end of the pier which runs into the Basin between the foot of Madison and Monroe streets, by a boy named James Haggarty. As he passed along, he observed the man take off his coat and throw himself into the Basin. He accordingly went for aid, and meeting one Mr. Wahl, driving in a buggy, the two went down to the pier and found that the man was drowned.

The Coroner was sent for and the body removed. Upon examination, his throat was found to be cut, but not sufficiently to have caused death, and from the medical testimony, the jury returned a verdict that the deceased came to his death by drowning.

The body is that of a man about thirty years of age; five feet three inches in height; full face; wore a knit cotton undershirt; hickory shirt; gray cassimere pants; blue pilot cloth coat, and under it a blue summer sack coat; blue socks and congress gaiters. Upon the body were found a pair of kids thread gloves, fifteen cents in change, and some papers. The body can be identified either at the Coroner's office or No. 184 Washington street.

Cook County Teachers' Institute.

The Cook County Teachers' Institute will convene this afternoon at 2 o'clock, in the beautiful new School House at Evanston Grove, six miles south of the city, on the Chicago, Pittsburg and Fort Wayne Railroad. Lectures will be delivered each evening during the session. It is expected that Rev. Dr. Barrouhs, President of the Chicago University will lecture this evening. The following gentlemen are also expected to lecture: Hon. N. Bateman, State Supt. of Public Schools, Rev. Dr. Skinner of Joliet, B. F. Taylor of the Chicago Journal, and W. H. Wells, Supt. of the city schools. All are cordially invited to the lectures, and all the sessions of the Institute.

Accommodation trains will run as follows leaving the West Side Depot, corner of Canal and Van Buren streets. Fare ten cents. To members of the Institute five cents. Leave Chicago at 6 a. m., 12 m., and 6 p. m. Leave Junction Grove at 4.55 a. m., 1.10 and 4.55 p. m. There will also a train leave Junction Grove after the lecture at night. Further notice of special trains.

Young Men's Association.

We learn from the Lecture Committee of the Young Men's Association, that arrangements are being made for one of the most interesting and attractive lecture courses which have ever been presented to our citizens. The following pioneers with whom private engagements have been made, is a good indication of the active efforts which are being made by the present efficient Board of Managers—Bayard Taylor, George Curtis, John B. Gough, J. G. Holland—and negotiations are also being had with many other gentlemen of the highest rank.

A Funny Star.—Mr. J. Collier, the inimitable delineator of Irish character, makes his first appearance this evening at McVicker's Theatre, in the new Irish Comedy of "The Colleen Bawn," written by Dion Boucicault, and said to be the very best play that has yet issued from his pen—its deep domestic interest appealing at once to popular sympathy. It will be elaborately produced, with entire new scenery and novel mechanical effects.

United States Circuit Court in Admiralty.—In this Court, Hon. John McLean presiding, and Hon. Thos. Drummond District Judge, an argument has been progressing for the last two days in the case of Charles Wheeler vs. the Western Transportation Company. The case grows out of the burning of the propeller Falcon and cargo on the South Branch of the Chicago River, in October, 1856. The same fire communicated to O. B. Hough & Co.'s warehouse, and a long contested suit has been in progress for the value of the warehouse and contents.

This action is brought by the shippers to recover from the respondents, the owners of the propeller Falcon, the value of a part of the cargo, consisting of six thousand and fourteen bushels of wheat, which had been shipped for Buffalo, but was consumed in the conflagration. The case has been argued once in the District Court in Admiralty, before Judge Drummond, by whom a decision was rendered in favor of the respondent Company, and the libel was dismissed. An appeal was taken to the Circuit Court, and it is now brought to a hearing, Judge McLean presiding.

The principal point involved is whether the Act of Congress of March 3d, 1851, to limit the liability of ship owners for losses by fire applies to vessels engaged in inter-State trade upon the lakes.

Judge Scates argued the case on behalf of the libellants; J. M. S. Cassin, Esq., and John Hubbell, Esq., of Buffalo, for the respondents. The case was taken under advisement by the Court at the conclusion of the argument.

Vincent & Co's Pharmacy.—We call attention to the announcement, in another column, of the Homœopathic Pharmacy of Messrs. F. L. Vincent & Co., just removed to and opened in exceedingly neat and well furnished quarters in the new block, No. 102 Washington street. Theirs is the oldest and first established pharmacy in the city, and it is a striking proof of the growth of this particular school of medicine in Chicago, that the several pharmacies here are well supported, and have found occasion and a call for large and handsome stores. Messrs. V. & Co. are the exclusive agents for the American Wine Company's products, which rank high among our native wines.

MORE SIGNIFICANT FACTS.

Which are the best Dictionaries of the English language is doubtless a question of some interest to the public; but we do not think they care much about the personal recriminations of the publishers who happen to have a pecuniary interest in the matter, and shall therefore have but few words to say in reply to the long attack upon ourselves which appears as an advertisement in several newspapers, over the signature of Swan, Brewer & Tileston, the publishers of Worcester's Dictionary.

The correspondence between a Philadelphia firm and ourselves which they quote, concerned some points about, long before Worcester's Quarto Dictionary was published. A part only of the correspondence is published, and a meaning is given to our letter which we never gave it, but which, on the contrary we explicitly disclaimed at the time. What we received the answer which has been printed, showing that our letter was the most uninterpreted, if not misunderstood, we wrote at once, disavowing any such meaning, saying that we intended "no threats," excepting so far as the independent publication might be considered such. In other words, we merely intimated that we should not be disposed to do them their regular business to try to injure us.

So much for the "publisher's trick," this childish attempt to raise the cry of persecution, and so endeavor to injure Worcester's Dictionaries are good books, and, if we may believe the publishers' circulars, have canvassed to sales their most "exquisite expectations." They, surely, should be content with this, and not feel so hardly toward us because we happen to publish competing books which we and the public (it seems) regard as much better, and which consequently have a sale many times as large, as indicated by the following STATEMENTS FROM LEADING WHOLESALE BOOKSELLERS IN THE PRINCIPAL CITIES:

E. H. BUTLER & Co.

We have sold, since 1st of January, fifty copies of "Worcester's Quarto Dictionary," and two hundred and six of "Webster's Unabridged." Many of the latter have been returned, that the sales of Worcester's book were all ended within a few days after publication. In the case of Webster, there was a sudden decline, and we have now little or no demand for it, while Worcester

THE QUESTION OF FEES.

Since Douglas has taken to scolding the agitators of the slavery question, there has been no such exhibition of impudence and assurance as is seen in the entery of the sham Democracy of Cook County over the fees of county officers. These fees were fixed by the Democracy, who are now complaining—fixed for the benefit of their own partizans; and be they large or small, right or wrong, the Republicans have no responsibility therefor. It is theirs to correct what their opponents have done amiss; and we venture to predict, that, if a Republican legislature is elected, all cause of complaint, growing out of the question of fees, will be removed. It will be no fault of ours if they are not largely reduced. In the meantime, let it be remembered that every bowl of the pro-slavery party is a condemnation of themselves.

"GEN. WALKER."

The New Orleans papers are expressing their regret that Gen. Walker has at last met the fate that he has earned. There is no occasion for lamentations and tears. Walker was a pirate and a murderer, whose manifold crimes have, any time these three years, invited the coming of the avenger; and no ingenuity in comparing him with Lafayette and Garibaldi will rescue his memory from the verdict that enlightened public opinion has entered up against it. Lafayette came to America in answer to the invitation of the Government and the people whose cause he espoused. He usurped no authority, committed no murders. In another field, Garibaldi has followed his example, and no cruelty and cowardice have marked his career. Walker's first act in Central America was one of usurpation, and his recent descent upon Honduras nothing but the exploit of a buccaneer. Lafayette fought to establish and maintain Liberty. In a holy contest for the same purpose Garibaldi is now engaged. The aim of Walker's exertions was the extension and perpetuation of Slavery. His fate is uncertain; but we hope he is hanged. The accomplices, at a safe distance from the indignation of the people whom he harried—those who furnished him with men and money—who applauded his cowardice and called it courage—who lauded his blunders as an evidence of military skill —who justified his murders and burnings—also deserve a touch of the hangman's hand.

THE LAST BUGABOO!

The State Register has a grossly unfair attack upon Governor Banks, predicated upon the assumption that he has been sent out here by the Illinois Central Railroad Company as the Republican agent for procuring the release of the Company from the obligation to pay the State seven per cent. of its annual gross earnings, as provided by the charter, in consideration of its munificent grant of land. Such an attack is unworthy of a partisan journal, even in the desperate strait in which the Register finds its party and itself. Gov. Banks comes here to exchange his services, as a man of large administrative ability, for a correspondingly large salary, and to build up for himself and his children a home. He has not the remotest idea of what the Register charges upon him, and if he had, there is not the remotest probability of his success. No legislature can be elected in Illinois that will dare assume the responsibility of releasing the Company from its obligations. No candidate can be interrogated who will not say that he will oppose such a scheme to the bitter end. We speak authoritatively for the Republican nominees of this county when we declare, that no plan of that kind will, under any circumstances, be favored by them; and we doubt not we might make the same pledge for every Republican candidate for the Legislature, in the whole State. Let the Register make the most of its bugaboo, remembering meanwhile that they are the oldest wantons who cry "wanton!" first.

END OF THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY.

A very intelligent and fair-minded gentleman of this city, a member of the Democratic party, gave it as his opinion, within the last week, that the Democratic party was hopelessly disintegrated, and that the last National Democratic Convention had no bond of union—would not cover the ground of National politics and study closely the movements and aims of parties, cannot fail, we think, to arrive at the same conclusion. It must be evident to the most superficial observer, that the name alone is all that is left to the once compact and powerful organization known as the Democratic party. The issues which formerly divided it from its old antagonist—the Whig party—have all disappeared, and but for the prestige of its past successes and the popular import of its name, the Democratic party would have gone out of existence along with its competitor, and new organizations, based upon new issues, would have resulted. The great fundamental ideas of the old Democratic party were these—a strict construction of the Constitution, each of the co-ordinate branches of the federal government to be held rigidly to the exercise of only such powers as were clearly granted, a cheap and simple government, full recognition of the rights of the sovereign States whether expressed or implied, and opposition to Class legislation both by the National and State governments. True to these ideas, the Democratic party fought the battle against a National bank, against internal improvements by the general government within the States, against the distribution of the surplus revenue among the States, against a tariff —and by the revenue wants of the government established the independent system, and made government dues payable in the precious metals. These questions having been all settled in accordance with the principles of the Democratic party, upon the national acquiescence therein, as expressed in the Presidential election of 1852, the Whig party disbanded. In fact that party never manifested any organic vitality after the defeat of its great champion—Clay—in 1844. The Presidential contests of 1848 and 1852, were struggles for power rather than for the distinctive principles of the opposing parties, and were conducted by the Whig party more with reference to the personal popularity and known integrity of its candidates than to any proposed line of governmental policy.

Flushed with the many triumphs achieved under their old name, it was not to be expected that the leaders of the Democratic party would have any desire to abandon it, now that their opponents had surrendered. But while they clung to the name they gradually abandoned every distinctive principle for which it once stood. The old issues having been disposed of, the only disturbing element in American politics was the question of Slavery. The Democratic party at once allied itself to an institution based upon principles at war with all the fundamental ideas of Democracy. From being in favor of strict construction, it yielded to the necessities of its new position and assumed the utmost latitudinarianism. Under Democratic exposition, enforced by Supreme Court decisions, the Constitution of the United States was made the warrant for the indefinite extension of slavery, with the view to its indefinite perpetuation, and to give to the slave-power perpetual control of the government. Instead of limiting each of the co-ordinate branches of the government to the exercise of such powers as are expressly granted, the Supreme Court assumed the right to sit in judgment upon political questions; and the party attempted to confer upon it a place in the hands of the Executive the right to declare war—a right expressly conferred by the Constitution upon Congress. Instead of favoring a cheap government, and calling all officers to a strict accountability, it run the annual expenditure up to one hundred millions of dollars, resorting to the most corrupt uses of the public money to maintain its ascendancy. In a word, it reversed every fundamental idea of the old Democratic party, retaining only its name, which it uses as a stalk for its perversion of principle and its foul practices.

There is supposed that the Democratic party however so organized could resist disruption and corruption; and into all other evil object it now finds that it has within itself the element of its own destruction. We must have enlarge upon the causes which led to the split in the last National Convention, and to the consequent split in the party itself. It is enough to know that the breach is irreconcilable—that the factions can never be reconciled. Each claims to be the true Democratic party, while the truth is that neither has the military principle in common with that old Democratic party which settled the issues of years ago. Each faction, also, by its action, recognizes the final dissolution of the party. Each is in the market. All manner of fusions are sought to be made. Douglas, with his Irish Catholic adherents, strikes hands with Brooks, of New York, and his Dark Lantern colaborers. Men hitherto of the most diverse sentiments, come together with a show of fraternal union, knowing that they cannot permanently co-operate, and only anxious for the temporary defeat of the great Republican party which is based upon the old Democratic ideas. There is justice in history.

We do not wonder that intelligent Democrats are everywhere admitting that the disintegration of the party is inevitable. The process is going on daily before their own eyes, and they cannot help but see it. Nor do we wonder that so many thousands of the honest portion of them are rushing to the standard of Republicanism emblazoned with the principles to which they formerly gave allegiance, and hysterical of which they were wont to triumph.

EUROPEAN CRITICISM.

The fact that in the United States there is extreme sensitiveness among all classes of people in relation to the opinion of enlightened foreigners so far as it concerns this country, its government and institutions, cannot have escaped any of our intelligent readers. It was particularly noticeable here during the stay of Baron Renfrow and suite. Every expression of the royal party complimentary to the city was joyfully received, and every unfavorable criticism tremblingly deprecated. At Dwight and at St. Louis, the same feeling was made manifest, and wherever the distinguished travellers go it will not be lacking. To stand well in the public opinion of the world—to be thought an inhabitant of a beautiful and fruitful country—to be a component part of a just and enlightened government—to be the supporter of institutions which are productive at once of law and liberty—is an ambition that fills every American heart.

It is a cause of deep regret among the most widely travelled and intelligent of our countrymen, that this feeling does not extend to our domestic politics—that the reputation which is given us abroad by our political action is forgotten. It matters little what estimate is placed upon our country by the aristocracy and royalty of the old world. In republican institutions and the doctrine of the equality of all men to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness, they will not see any merit. But on the Continent and in the United Kingdom are thousands and tens of thousands devotees of the American idea—of Liberty—whose adverse criticism and mournful prognostications may well excite our regret. They, accustomed to look to this Republic as the type and exponent of their political ideas, have frequent cause to turn away from American recrudency with sorrow and disgust. The steady decadence of the liberty-loving sentiment, seen in the action of parties; the Dred Scott decision, which was received abroad with horror intensified by the source whence the decision came; the undisguised efforts of a national administration to force slavery upon an unwilling people in Kansas; the filibustering for the extension of the "peculiar institution,"—these things have had their legitimate effect, and our country, about the reputation of which, when a Prince or a Duke comes among us, we are so solicitous, has suffered more than from all the abusive books which all the foreign travelers have ever written. In the contest now at hand, we have another fact by which the United States will be judged. One party—that, fortunately, the weakest of all—has for a leader a candidate whose platform is slavery extension; another, a candidate whose friends are most eager in his behalf "does not care whether slavery be voted up or voted down;" and in abeyance that the following very questionable sentiment of Mr. Bell may divide the spoils; and the last represents the only real, practical and, under our constitution, admissible anti-slavery idea. He who supposes that the latter can be defeated without the addition to our country of a new reproach, felt by the friends of freedom throughout the world, knows nothing of the aversion and horror with which the buying and selling of men, women and children are regarded by the liberal minds of the European world.

The men who fear the criticism of individual foreigners upon our country and its institutions, and who do not care to conceal their joy when a favorable opinion is expressed, will do well to calculate before they vote, the effect among the thinkers of the old world, of another triumph of the party of oppression. They see slavery as it is—in the sum of all the villainies. We, with its always on our tongues, lose sight of the horrors which it implies. Though we may be callous to the reproaches of conscience, let us at least be mindful of the good opinion of those who would gladly look to our country as the representative and hope of the Democracy of the world!

Contemplated Frauds in Indiana.

The Know-Nothings of Kentucky under the leadership of the Louisville Journal, have taken the job to beat Henry S. Lane for Governor, and elect the Douglas-Breckinridge ticket. All along the border counties Kentuckians are reported to be scattering themselves with the intention to vote at the fair ——— October election. Kentucky ma——— ributed to defray the expenses ——— t colonization.

Indiana was carried t——— at Morton by similar means in 1856, as every Indianian now knows, by votes imported from Ohio, Kentucky and Illinois.

This State will be drawn on again from Cincinnati to Shawneetown, to make up the fusion deficit. Lane is sure to be elected if none but Indianians vote. A clear majority of the people of that State are for him. Pennsylvania, 'too, was carried four years ago by importations and forged naturalization papers, as was proved in the Philadelphia Court, where a jury found a verdict that 2,500 fraudulent Democratic votes had been deposited in eight precincts in that city; and as was proved before the Covode Committee, by Patrick Lafferty, a Democratic office holder, and William Karns, a Democratic contractor on the public works.

Lacrosse, Viroqua and Mascoda Railroad.

With returning prosperity the friends and projectors of railways at the West begin to bring their projects before the public. We had a very interesting time with William Brewster, Esq., of Lacrosse, the President of the Lacrosse, Viroqua and Mascoda Railroad. A glance at the map of Wisconsin will show the location of the line. Its general course is a little east of south, and a line nearly direct, we are assured, can be obtained between Lacrosse and Mascoda on the Milwaukee and Mississippi Railroad, by which and the Northwestern Road the distance between Lacrosse and Chicago can be shortened fifty miles. It is only twenty miles from Mascoda to Minaral Point, giving a choice of routes to Chicago by the Mineral Point, the Illinois Central and the Galena roads. The President expects to commence grading the road in a few months. The people along the line will do most of the grading and the furnishing of ties when parties stand ready to put down the iron. The rolling stock will be furnished by connecting roads. The friends of the project begin to feel sanguine of early success.

Population of McHenry County.

The census returns of McHenry county gives the following result: total population, 23,163; number of farms, 1,914; families, 4,164; dwellings, 4,382; showing that there are 120 families to a farm.

The population of Woodstock in 1,230, and Marengo, 1,156. The population of McHenry by the State census of 1855 was 19,385; gain in five years, 3,778. The population in 1850 was 14,676; gain in ten years, 7,107. This is less than the gain of population in each of the previous decades.

Manufactures.—The number of ——— in operation in McHenry ——— is reported to be 26 067,000 during the year 1859; they consume ——— 277,000 and sell for $1,000,000. The ——— ber of hands employed during the year. The ——— ber of the city are reported at $121,000, ——— ; capital, $150,000; number hands, $117,000; manufactures in pork packing, $100,000; grain, $60,000.

BOONE COUNTY.

Discussion Between Fuller and Bascom.

[Correspondence of the Press and Tribune.]

BELVIDERE, Sept. 26, 1860.

That interesting sheet, the Times and Herald, chronicles great gains for the "Fraudulent Democracy" in Rome. The miserable scribbler that wrote the letter had an opportunity yesterday of seeing the relative strength of parties in this vicinity.

The joint discussion between Fuller and Bascom took place yesterday afternoon on our beautiful Court House Square. Dying Douglasism made all the spasmodic exertion in its power to make a respectable showing. The Senator, Hoard's and sage, the badges of devotion to slavery extension were freely distributed to any moderately decent man who would wear them by day-light. Pressmen of all kinds were mustered to get up a fair show of the skeletons. Dr. Maloney, Chief Whipper-in, and Mat Quarter, Master-General, were riding and driving. The regulation supplies of poor whisky were on hand, and yet after all, the Douglas Guards paraded on the occasion but 35 men and boys (think of those about 16 were voters. Of the tag-rag who were in attendance, besides the Guards. It is liberal to set down the number at one hundred.

But at the hour of 2 P. M., came on the farmers of this gallant county, with their wives and children, poured in. The Wide Awakes parade at 1 P. M., with 125 in ranks, marched to Mr. Fuller's residence and escorted him to the stand. Three thousand people were assembled —nine-tenths Republicans—and cannot be told by any effort, no more power than a law binding without any sanction, and therefore very ——— and in abeyance that the following ——— of Mr. Bell may divide the spoils; and the Fuller then rose to reply, and about that time there were some pleasant blows to be dealt out. Every shot told, and as the feathers flew from the plucked geese, there was wailing. One especially industrious blackguard would persist in being hooked down, and was ——— invited to "try it on." After ——— that Hamilton had received a ——— skeleton his raiment to vote for ——— had been taken out of the Hon——— measure. After showing the difference between the Republican House bill and the Senatorial substitute, and charging and proving that neither faction of the Democratic party dare avow itself in favor of this great measure, Mr. Fuller proceeded in a ——— to drive away ——— sarcasm and indignant eloquence to strip from the Douglass men the lion's side of the old Democratic party, in which it has hitherto clothed themselves, and to show the long eared animal beneath, and proved that they had abandoned and will not support the principles that made men Democrats, and had sunk themselves into a mere machine for perpetuating and extending the domination of slavery over this great nation.

At the close of his speech the vast audience rose to their feet and the free air of Boone county rang with three cheers for Fuller, and rousing cheers for Lincoln, Hamlin and Freedom, and three more for Fuller. The ——— ment did not by its friends ——— was as follows: For Lincoln, 541; Douglas, 177; Bell, 31; Breckinridge, 17.

—Courtesy and good nature seem to prevail among the political clubs of Albany. On Monday evening the Little Giants had a parade, and the several Wide-Awake Clubs illuminated their headquarters in the streets through which the Giants passed. This friendly demonstration was received with hearty cheers.

—The Boston Courier is about to expose the mistakes of the framers of the Declaration of Independence. It starts off with the initial error, "all men are born free and equal." John C. Calhoun performed what the Courier proposes to do, some years ago; and nobody thinks less of the Declaration to-day than before, that we know of.

—A writer in the Southern Confederacy gives a picture of what will happen when Mr. Yancey's revolution is precipitated. Among other disagreeable things the following will take place:

> The wise man of the South, Alexander H. Stephens, will be dragged to the guillotine, and his head will roll in the gutter and float in a stream of human blood. Our Glenns and Wrights and Warners will be hunted down like wild beasts, and the eloquence of a Rhett or a Keitt be hushed forever more! The now peaceful, prosperous and proud city of Atlanta will be sacked and pillaged by angry factions; its houses will be consumed by devouring flames, and its gutters will run with gore.

PERSONAL.

—Col. Ephraim L. Snow, the founder of the organization of the Sons of Temperance, died in New York a few days since of typhoid fever. He was a genial, amiable gentleman, and his loss to the temperance cause will be severely felt.

—James Wilson, formerly editor of the London Economist, has recently died in India, where he was finance minister of the Supreme Council. His death is a great loss to the reformed administration in Indiana.

—We learn from the New York Tribune that Mr. Charles L. Frost, of that city, has been elected President of the Peoria and Oquawka Railroad.

—The Baltimore Sun chronicles the arrest of Jacob Blyan, one of the party who has been engaged in abducting free negroes from Pennsylvania. He admits that he has frequently driven negroes to Washington, which have been sold to go South, knowing that they were free.

—A return of the State Assessors for Mariposa county, Cal., in which lies Col. Fremont's rancho, gives the average value of the quartz rock crushed in the machines there as $27.50 per ton, and the total yield of the county in gold at $1,992,000 a year. This is the product of 14 mills, and 325 stamps. Col. Fremont has now about 80 stamps in operation, from which his returns are said to be $35,000 a week. He has lately completed a railroad, running up the mountain to the quartz ledge, a mile and a quarter in length. Its completion and opening were made the occasion for a festival, in which a great deal of interest was taken by the people of the neighborhood.

MOVEMENTS OF THE PEOPLE.

FUSION IN NEW YORK—THE CONTRACT.

1st Week—Kneel about the cauldron all,
In the contract sign and seal;
Dance and sing and shout and howl,
Days and nights and all night owl;
Fire burn and cauldron bubble.

2d Week—Round about the cauldron go!
In the contract foul and base;
Eye of newt, and toe of frog,
Wool of bat and tongue of dog,
Adder's fork and blind-worm's sting,
Lizard's leg, and owlet's wing,
For a charm of powerful trouble,
Like a hell-broth boil and bubble.

All—Double, double toil and trouble;
Fire burn and cauldron bubble.

3d Week—Cool it with a baboon's blood.

—Gov. Wise has written a short letter—only twenty-seven written pages—to repel the charge that Breckinridge proclaimed for John Brown's reprieve. Having done this, his monomania returns to vex him, and he winds up the document by saying:—

> "It is time that the slave States were ready for the revolution, which is coming inevitably, with the purpose to take from them not only their personal property in negro slaves, but their political property in this great and glorious Union. Let neither class or rights be invaded; Sphit Avet, and don't let the invaders miss the power to disarm you."

INDIANA.—The Republicans, to the number of 5,000, had a grand gathering and barbecue at Valparaiso on Tuesday last. Speeches were made by Col. Lane, De Motte, Church, Crumbacker, and others. Northwestern Indiana will show a handsome political record at the end of the campaign.

MICHIGAN.—The Republicans, to the number of 15,000, came together at St. Joseph on the 26th ult. Speeches were made by Gov. Bingham, F. W. Kellogg, Philetus Hayden, A. H. Morrison, and others. The jubilee lasted from daybreak until 12 o'clock, midnight.

A CURIOUS COINCIDENCE.—It is a notable fact that almost all the leading supporters of Mr. Douglas in the South repudiate his platform. That is the case in Missouri with the whole body of his friends.

—Gen. Barrow, of Tennessee, addressed a Douglas Bell audience at Buffalo a few days since. He seemed to know the men whom he was addressing. He commended his speech by telling them that if they could make five dollars for one they would have slavery here! The Douglas-Bell men did not know whether to applaud at that moment or not.

—At the great Republican meeting in Pittsburg last Thursday there were 5,860 Wide-Awakes by actual count in the procession. And they did not constitute one-third of the people in that monster procession. The number of people at the four speaking stands were estimated at 85,000. The largest meeting held in Pittsburg in 1856, was only 7,000. The Pittsburg Journal predicts 6,000 majority for the Republican ticket in Allegheny County. At the October election in 1856 it was 4,285. We shall not be surprised if it now exceeds 6,000.

THE QUESTION ANSWERED.—While Gen. Barrow, a Tennessean, was addressing a Douglas-Bell meeting at Buffalo, he got stoutly asked the assemblage whether Abraham Lincoln ought to be elected President. An almost unanimous response of "yes!" from the audience nearly drove the speaker from his propriety. The Tennessean did'nt put the question again, nor anything like it, during his speech.

—Hon. Frank P. Blair, Jr., addressed an immense gathering of Republicans at Norristown, Pa., on Wednesday last. The Philadelphia papers say the speech was a strong and vigorous one, and was listened to with profound attention.

ROBERT C. WINTHROP ON LINCOLN.—Hon. Robert C. Winthrop made a speech before the Bell-wethers of Boston on Tuesday night last. Speaking of the different candidates for the Presidency, he said;

> It was my fortune to be in the House of Representatives when Mr. Abraham Lincoln darted his first very term of Congressional service. You will be sure that I remember him with interest. He had already showed a promise that he helped to make me the Speaker of the XXXth Congress, when the vote was a very close and strongly contested one, and when certain gentlemen of the West and East, whom I remember with no unkindness, refused me their support. I certainly thought well of Mr. Lincoln then, and after all he did not utter a syllable to say against him now. If he should become President of the United States by fair Constitutional means, he shall have my best wishes for his success; and I will stand by the Union and the Constitution with him and under him as long as he stands by them himself. [Applause.]

The "gentlemen from the East and West," of whom Mr. Winthrop speaks, are the very same men with whom he is now affiliating to defeat Mr. Lincoln.

A GOOD TEST.—A vote for President was taken on board of a train of cars bound for the Ohio State Fair, on the Dayton and Xenia Road, on Thursday afternoon. As the whole train was filled with farmers from the surrounding counties, it may be regarded as a test of the relative strength of parties among the yeomanry of the Buckeye State. This friendly demonstration was as follows: For Lincoln, 541; Douglas, 177; Bell, 31; Breckinridge, 17.

—Courtesy and good nature seem to prevail among the political clubs of Albany. On Monday evening the Little Giants had a parade, and the several Wide-Awake Clubs illuminated their headquarters in the streets through which the Giants passed. This friendly demonstration was received with hearty cheers.

—The Boston Courier is about to expose the mistakes of the framers of the Declaration of Independence. It starts off with the initial error, "all men are born free and equal." John C. A writer in the Southern Confederacy gives a picture of what will happen when Mr. Yancey's revolution is precipitated. Among other disagreeable things the following will take place:

> The wise man of the South, Alexander H. Stephens, will be dragged to the guillotine, and his head will roll in the gutter and float in a stream of human blood. Our Glenns and Wrights and Warners will be hunted down like wild beasts, and the eloquence of a Rhett or a Keitt be hushed forever more! The now peaceful, prosperous and proud city of Atlanta will be sacked and pillaged by angry factions; its houses will be consumed by devouring flames, and its gutters will run with gore.

This is the product of 14 mills, and 325 stamps. Col. Fremont has now about 80 stamps in operation, from which his returns are said to be $35,000 a week. He has lately completed a railroad, running up the mountain to the quartz ledge, a mile and a quarter in length. Its completion and opening were made the occasion for a festival, in which a great deal of interest was taken by the people of the neighborhood.

The number of small repairs to furniture, glass, fine stone crockery, children's toys, &c., &c., which are constantly occurring, and almost innumerable uses to which in every household a ready good article of the kind may be applied, will at once suggest themselves to the ladies. THE PRESIDENTIAL QUESTION.

Hon. W. L. Yancey in Maryland.

Douglas, Bell and Lincoln in the same Boat —Yancey on a Good Horse—The Advice Spurs—The Supporting Mule not Safe.

[Special Dispatch to the Cincinnati Commercial.]

BALTIMORE, Sept. 28, 1860.

Hon. W. L. Yancey spoke at Canton, Maryland, yesterday, before an immense audience, by whom he was very enthusiastically received. He said that he would have to crave the indulgence of his hearers, on account of his broken voice and jaded condition—the former having been injured by his constant efforts in behalf of Breckinridge. He, however, asked their attention while he endeavored to reason with them as one friend and National Union should with another—appealing to no prejudices or passions, but rather to their higher and better natures. He would discuss the principles on which the Government should be administered, without reference to partisan animosities. There were always important questions of foreign and internal policy arising, but this contest was far above all preceding ones. Nowhere from Maine to Florida, in the North or in the South, was there more than one question discussed, and that related to the existence of the Union and the safety of the institution of slavery.

There were but two sides to this controversy; the one occupied by Breckinridge and Lane, and the other by Lincoln and Hamlin. The friends of the Senator from Illinois might think there was a third side, but there was not. He (Douglas) stood with Seward against the Constitution and the principles on which the Government had always been administered. Douglas went beyond the Southern fanatic and the commonest of the West and East, when I remember with no unkindness, refused me their support. I certainly thought well of Mr. Lincoln then, and after all he did not utter a syllable to say against him now. If he should become President of the United States by fair Constitutional means, he shall have my best wishes for his success; and I will stand by the Union and the Constitution with him and under him as long as he stands by them himself. OVERWHELMING DEMONSTRATION.

100,000 Freemen in Council!

WESTERN PENNSYLVANIA IN A BLAZE.

Tremendous Outpouring of the Masses.

[From the Pittsburgh Gazette, 28th.]

Yesterday morning opened cheerlessly. A cold drizzling rain was falling, and the prospect was everything but encouraging. But between nine and ten o'clock the rain held up, and the country delegations began to come in almost endless streams, and it then became apparent that the people of city and country were turning out en masse to the Convention.

And so it turned out. Despite the cold, stormy day, and the general vastness of the weather, the display was the grandest ever witnessed here, if not the grandest ever witnessed anywhere. We have never seen anything like it. We saw the great displays of 1840 and 1856, both of which were, in their time, unprecedented; but this display overtopped both. Mr. Wade, of Ohio, who has attended many enthusiastic political gatherings, says it exceeded all he ever before saw, and this was the general testimony of all the gentlemen from abroad who were present. It was not only a succession it was a triumph—a most magnificent, as well as unprecedented display.

The scene on the ground was truly beautiful. The whole of the vast area of the Wide Common, stretching from Seminary Hill to the Outer depot, was literally alive with people. The immense crowds around the four speaking stands did not seem to lessen in the least the magnitude of the great mass, which could not be reached by the human voice from the places appointed for speaking. There were a number of speakers on the ground who could not get near the speakers.

The weather undoubtedly kept many away, and the unexpected absence of that Pittsburgh, Ft. Wayne and Chicago Railroad in refusing to issue excursion tickets doubtless kept many away. Yet it was a most magnificent gathering, the recollection of which will never fade from the memory of those who witnessed it.

Speeches were made by Messrs. Corwin and Wade, of Ohio, Cessna and Caldwell of Pa., Armour, of Maryland, and Curtin, Cowan, McMichael and Cuffey, of Pennsylvania.

WM. H. SEWARD IN KANSAS.

His Reception in Leavenworth.

[From the Leavenworth Times, September 25th.]

When the thundering of "Old Kickapoo," yesterday morning announced that the steamer Omaha was in sight, bearing the great Republican statesman on his first visit to Kansas, a throng of people gathered on the levee. Our citizens were anxious to exhibit the deep interest which the feel in the man and his career.

The boat landed at about half past eleven. Gov. Steward and his party were escorted to the carriages which awaited them. Messrs. Delaware and down Shawnee to the Planter's House. The Wide-Awakes followed in procession, and a band of musicians preceded the whole. Arrived at the corner of Maine and Shawnee streets, the band played "Hail to the Chief," and the assembled multitude gave a greeting of three hearty cheers.

A temporary stand had been erected in front of the Planter's House, for the occasion. From this platform Gov. Seward was introduced by A. Carter Wilder, Esq., who welcomed him in a brief address.

Mr. Seward began his reply by saying that it was well that he had not the voice to enable him to speak at length, for the emotions which were crowding upon him would not be expressed in words. He would not have them think him wanting in gratitude, if his language failed to express the feelings which possessed him.

Many years ago, when he visited Gen. Lafayette, the brave Frenchman who fought for us, at the entrance of his residence there stood a brass cannon, which bore the inscription, "Presented by the liberty-loving citizens of Paris." Here, at his entrance into Kansas, he turned two pistols of the spirit of her free people. The one was the cannon which was booming on the hill near by. He had inquired in that city what is the free State men during the commotion which existed several years ago, when we were struggling for free institutions. Another evidence of the free impulses by which we were actuated, was the organization of the Wide-Awakes whom he saw around him; and the army of free laboring men—carpenters, masons and mechanics of all kinds—who had come out in a body to welcome him.

Gov. Steward proceeded to pay a next compliment to the Wide-Awake Club. He then alluded again to the subject of free labor, and said that it must be respected, as being the foundation of our strength and prosperity. He spoke of agitation he had acquired was due mainly to the fact that he had endeavored, in his public capacity, to lay the foundations of free States, and especially the free State of Kansas. He then paid a glowing tribute to the people of this Territory. He said they had achieved freedom for themselves, and now they called upon the free to aid in securing it to the embryo States around them. Kansas stood as a sentinel in the pathway to the large region of country extending from the British possessions on the north to Texas on the south, and west beyond the Rocky Mountains. It was her duty to give our influences to secure freedom to the States which would spring up in that wide domain.

Gov. S. then spoke in regard to the brevity of his remarks. He could not have attended and delivered a speech in this Territory, and that would be at Lawrence, on account of its central position. He stood by urging the people to cherish the free institutions for which they had so long contended. Freedom was not only established here, but would eventually prevail in the whole Union, on the whole continent, and through the whole world.

At his appearance on the stand, and several times during his address, the distinguished speaker was enthusiastically cheered.

Douglas Electors Withdrawing in Tennessee.

[From the Memphis Avalanche, 26th.]

Douglas had much trouble in finding his mother, and it seems our friends in East Tennessee are likely to encounter equally as much difficulty in finding an electoral ticket. We learn from the Bristol News that the Douglas electors "Messrs. Britton and Malone, in view of the favorable consideration given their proposition, have both withdrawn from the canvass. It now devolves the duty of A. J. Donelson Walker and the Memphis Argus, who have heretofore filled vacancies as fast as they occurred, to manufacture substitutes for those who have gone over. We have deserted the sinking cause of Douglas and resumed their accustomed places in the ranks of the Democracy. We presume it will be difficult to supply the places that is made vacant, as it is an honor which no one courts. The day will come when Democrats will be found procuring certificates to prove they opposed the election of Douglas; and consequently it requires extraordinary nerve for a Democrat to see his name handled about the State as a Douglas elector.

We understand that there is a strong probability that a few more Douglas electors will resign. We shall keep our readers advised of all vacancies, as fast as they occur, or when filled —for which task the self-constituted sponsors seem to possess a peculiar fondness.

The "Burst District" Abinst!

About a week since the Republicans of Newcastle sent forth an invitation for their political brethren to meet with them in council on Tuesday, the 25th inst., which was responded to by at least 15,000 persons. They came from all parts by railroad, by wagons and carriages and on horseback, and spent one of the most glorious days ever seen in Newcastle or any other town in Indiana. The liberal and hospitable citizens of Newcastle had provided a public dinner for the occasion. For this purpose there were 900 chickens, 1,300 loaves of bread, 1,400 pies and 1,000 pounds of beef, that the people of the town were compelled to furnish more than one dinner. One gentleman, Mr. John Payne, contributed 300 pounds of flour, 36 cooked chickens, 2 turkies, 40 pies, 40 loaves of bread, besides delicacies and other provisions. There was the greatest abundance of everything that was good for the crowd to eat.

The people were addressed by Hon. Joshua R. Giddings and P. P. Lowes, Esq., also by A. Peele, Republican candidate for Secretary of State, Nelson Trusler, Lincoln Elector for the 10th District, and others. The most unbounded enthusiasm prevailed.

In the evening the town was illuminated. Fireworks were discharged from the tops of the Court House and the residence of Mr. Murphy and J. H. Mellett, Esq. In the procession of Wide Awakes there were 1,450 by actual count, of which number 300 were from Richmond. A prize banner was awarded to the company from Hagerstown, Wayne

Financial and Commercial.

MONETARY.

SATURDAY EVENING, Sept. 29, 1860.

Exchange has been steady during the day at the current rates, viz: 1 per cent. premium. The banks have sold during the day at the regular price, but we presume a concession of a quarter would be made by banks or notes of them for large sums. In the street 1/2@¾ are the ruling figures. The banks bought from customers at par; but 1/8 was all they were willing to pay to outsiders.

Gold buying at 1/2 per cent; selling at 1/2@1, the lower figures for round lots.

Generally the money market is working easier. It is becoming more plenty every week, but the large amount of business doing keeps it in active request. As soon as navigation closes we look for easier times than have been seen in the city for years past.

The receipts of wheat amounted to 139,113 bushels. The market, under this supply, as well as the dullness prevailing in Eastern markets, was exceedingly heavy, and the transactions were comparatively light at about 1c decline. Very little was sold to shippers, as they are holding off for further concessions, or an improvement in the tone of European and Eastern markets. Only about 70,000 bushels changed hands at 87½@88c for Northwestern Club; 86@87c for No. 2 Spring; and 83c@84c for No. 3 Spring—all parties holding off at the close for the quotations of the next day. The Flour market was more active to-day, at a shade easier rates. About 1800 brls were sold at $4.50@4.85 for Spring extras, and $6.00 for White Winter. Corn was in good demand, and prices ruled a little higher, with sales of No. 2 Canal at 41c afloat; No. 1 at 39½@40c in store; and No. 2 at 39c in store. Oats steady and more active. Rye quiet. Barley rather dull. Highwines quiet at 19c for Country, and 19½ for City. Mess Pork is firm at $19.50. Tallow scarce and firm. Hides in good demand and firm.

Freights were shade firmer to-day—the rates for wheat being 12½c for wheat Buffalo, and 15c for Corn to Port Sarnia.

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 29.—Wheat—Receipts 93,393 bu; shipments 57,300 bu. The market closed dull at a heavy nominal decline, shippers unwilling to name any figure. The sales, which all took place before the close of the market, include: 3,000 bu No. 1 at 91c in store; 3,450 bu do at 90c in store; 1,000 bu do at 90½c in store; 1,400 bu do at 92c del; 2,000 bu No. 2 at 82½c in store; 4,500 bu do at 83c in store; 1,700 bu do at 87½c in store; 5,000 bu do for Delaware on Monday and Tuesday at 86c in store; 20,000 bu Club at 94c; 500 bbl do at 93c; 400 bu Red Winter at 95c.

PROVISIONS AND HOGS IN LOUISVILLE—Sept. 28.—Mess Pork very dull and declining, holders anxious to sell; sales 125 brls at $19@19 50; 60 extra sales at 20 00; 50 thrown back at 14@14½. Whisky sales 306 brls S. P. 23.

DISGRACEFUL TREATMENT OF CATTLE DROVERS.—The N. Y. Tribune of Thursday says:

The complaints of drovers, founded as they were upon the most flagrant robberies on the New York Central Road, would make anybody else on earth but the managers of that road clench with shame at such more shameful than highway robbery. For instance, Z. C. Darling, a drover to be sure, but still a man, whose respectability will rank with any of that very Democratic junto that controls the Central, assures us that he was compelled, on his last trip, to ride in such a dirty caboose, that it was absolutely unfit for occupation by any decent man, yet eleven were crowded into it at Syracuse and six more at Rome; and this seventeen men came to Albany, with no place for part of them to sit down, and no room for any. It is an outrage upon decency, and a disgrace to civilization, to treat men, who rank somewhat above pigs, in such a villainous manner.

THE LATE ADVICES FROM EUROPE.—The New York Independent of yesterday says:

The prices from Europe are of no unexpected a turn in the state of the weather and the condition of the wheat crop as to lead to a change in prices downward. The yield of wheat in England is now represented to be a full average one. The rains have not prevented the growth of the plant, the fine weather enabling it to be secured in good order. The great warehouses of London and Europe are stocked with foreign corn, both from Russia, Prussia, and this country, and the consequence is a great fall in prices abroad for further importations, so that England and France will not suffer for lack of food as a dependence entirely upon the harvest. The Government seems to have a control of the market for foreign wheat. Their large establishments in London, in the Mediterranean, on the Black Sea, with branches in New York, serve the medium of supply to England in what she is deficient in cereal products. They have thus far made large profits, but a draw back has to be secured. They will not renew their orders except at a great reduction in price. Europe will want some wheat and flour during the year, but not at the excessive prices imagined by the speculators in grain. A great proportion of the large crop will still be wanted at remunerative prices, and the harvest still high prices are drawing ample supplies from the West. It is for the interest of the farmer to sell while prices are remunerative. The consumption of our own country, it is to be remembered, far transcends any demand that comes to us from abroad, though the foreign demand fixes the market price. We observe the failure of the potato crop in England is great, and will increase the consumption of corn.

OCEAN FREIGHTS AT NEW YORK—Sept. 28.—To Liverpool, 100 brls rosin at 4s; 50,000 bu wheat at 1½d in bulk and 2½d in bags; 600 boo brls resin at 3s 6d per 310 lbs; 50 hhds tallow at 55s; 50 bales hops, per steamer, at 3s 6d. To London, 1,000 brls flour at 2s 10½d; 10,000 bush wheat, and 300 bales hops on private terms. To Glasgow, 50 brls spirits turpentine on private terms.

The Harvest in Scotland.

The Aberdeen Herald of the Scotsman writes thus of the present harvest prospects in Scotland:

"The weather continues favorable for harvest operations. The last portion during the day has been dull, and some harvesting operations have been suspended. The amount of rain taken during the week by the atmosphere has tended to reduce the temperature during the night to the freezing point, and consequently ripening has been generally progressed. Stooking has now been completed in the district, and grain continues to ripen. A moorish note has recently been heard in Upper Donside and Strathdon, but in the low districts the harvest work is still in the field to a large extent. The harvest work is nearly completed this week. The increase in the number of hands employed in the harvest fields is now still more marked. Cutting is the harvest work carried on. Threshing has also commenced in the district, and it is a very large portion of Foreign will be required for milling, and consequently for the home market. The greater portion of the potatoes are now lifted. The crop is generally reported to be good, and the tubers are of fine quality. The disease has not yet made its appearance to any extent. The turnip crop is also
